Bad Beats in Allentown

by Eric C. Johnson

Justin Xu (1563) vs.

Eric C. Johnson (2128)

Allentown 2018

Sicilian Defense, Alapin Variation-

Olin has asked me to annotate some games from Allentown -- but with a twist: the games will feature a big upset where a lower-rated player scores the full point against a much stronger opponent. My motivation is clear: perhaps these "bad beats" will encourage some Lansdale players to visit us in Allentown to score their own upsets! We start with a "bad beat" I suffered last year. Justin Xu is a very promising junior player -- his rating this year is about 100 points higher. He and his brother (Jon) both have a fondness for the 2. c3 Sicilian. (Text cont. p.2)

White is holding back his d-pawn, a move order finesse that may win some time on the clock. However, the d-pawn must come to d4 eventually. Black's task is to find a way to reach his preferred lines.

6.h3 Bh5 7.0-0 e6 8.d4 cxd4 9.Nxd4 [D] (Next col.) The usual move here is 9. cxd4 -- accepting an isolated pawn and transposing back into main lines. I have had the position after 9. cxd4 (with or without the insertion of h3/Bh5) at least two dozen (Text cont. next col.)

Position after 9.Nxd4 (From prev. col.)

- Alan Kantor v. Eric C. Johnson: New Windsor, NY 1995: match game 3-
- Jeff Wiemann v. Eric C. Johnson: Allentown 2001.
- Jon Kleinfeld v. Eric C. Johnson: Allentown 2013:-
- Jon Xu v. Eric C. Johnson: Allentown 2017

I have faced 9. Nxd4 only a handful of times. By not accepting the standard structural weakness, White aims for a slower game with chances to exploit his 3:2 queenside pawn majority. 9...Bxe2 10.Qxe2 Nc6 11.Be3 [D]

By a different order of moves we have reached a position from Tiviakov v. Lautier, Linares 1995. To understand why my choice in the game here at move 14 is not very good, let us first see how Lautier solved his opening problems: 14. ... Qc6! (removing the Queen from the d-file right away makes good sense) 15. Nf3 Rfd8 16. c4 Qe4 17. Kf1 b6 18. b3 Rac8 19. Rd3 Oxe2+ 20. Kxe2 Ne4 21. Rad1 and White had only a cosmetic advantage. 14...b5?! Playing down by several hundred rating points, Black prefers not to trade queens. To be fair. I also was not familiar with Lautier's clear and consistent plan. ¹[14...Qc6 15.Nf3 Rfd8 16.c4 Qe4 17.Kf1 b6 18.b3 Rac8 19.Rd3 Qxe2+ 20.Kxe2 Ne4 21.Rad1 [D]

¹Analysis Diagram

15.Nf3 [D]

(Text cont. next col.)

(Cont. from prev.col.) Here 15. Bxf6 gxf6 may favor White, but it allows for possible chances down the g-file. The second player would welcome a source of such counter-play. 15...Qb7 16.Rd3 a5 17.Rad1 Qa6 18.Bxf6 Bxf6 19.Rd6 Qb7 20.Ne5 [D]

20... Bxe5 21.Qxe5 b4 22.Qd4 bxc3 23.Qxc3 h6 24.R1d3 Rfc8 25.Qd2 [D]

The game has gone White's way and he has a dominating position on d-file. The tripled heavy pieces make a strong impression -- he virtually cannot lose. This is a dream position for a player seeking an upset. Even so, Black is still in the game after 25. ...Qb4!?

25...a4?! 26.Rg3 Qc7 [D]

(with the idea of 26. Qxh6 Qc1+ 27. Qxc1 Rxc1+ 28. Kh2 Rc2 with counterplay) 27.Kh2! (Text cont. next col.)

¹Analysis Diagram

27...Qc1?? Dreary defense (even for just a few moves) leads to gross errors -- White can end the game with 27. ... Qc1?? 28. Rd8+ Kh7 29. Qxc1! Rxc1 30. Rxa8 etc... 28.Qd4 (?! -- White misses the tactic but threatens mate on g7)

¹Analysis Diagram

28...g6 29.Rxe6! Rc6 [D]

Sometimes we just have to hang loose in bad positions and see if the opponent can finish the game -- White finishes in style. 30.Rqxq6+! [D]

(Text cont. p.4)

Mate is unavoidable. A nice diagram position -- and kudos to Justin for a great game! 1–0

Look for another "Bad Beat" from Allentown coming your way soon!
